Description

A fine quality and well proportioned antique Rosewood Anglo Indian daybed with caned seating and linen squab. This well carved and solid Rosewood daybed dates to the 1830 -1840's and originates from India. Having "S" scroll shaped ends with each side being profusely carved with foliage, this daybed stands extremely well. The original bergere caning is in excellent condition with the daybed having a newly upholstered in a neutral linen squab. Raised on turned and carved feet and in excellent condition having been gently restored using traditional methods. A very decorative and attractive item of furniture sure to be a talking piece of any room.
