Description

Antique Edwardian solid mahogany drop leaf table which is very practicable because it folds down almost flat. These tables are generally known as 'Sutherland Tables' (The Sutherland table is supposed to be named for Harriet, Duchess of Sutherland (1806 to 1868). It is a folding table whose top is so narrow that, when folded, it can be stood against a wall without taking up much space). This table is in excellent condition & surprisingly stable when the flaps are up. The flaps are supported by the swing out legs. This table could actually be used as an occasional dining table. Width Closed - 7.5", 19 cm Length Open - 33.9", 86 cm Depth - 27.2", 69 cm Height - 28", 71 cm
