Description

Antique Colonial hardwood merchants chest Here we have this 19thc hardwood trunk that would have been used to transport valuables along the trading routes in the East. These were made of a very strong construction to help protect the contents on the long arduous sea and land journeys. Having brass straps to the corners makes it very decorative as well as giving the trunk durability. These make the most wonderful coffee tables. Imagine the conversation with your friends and family as you imagine what has been transported inside and the adventures it has been part of in its life. The lid lifts on hinges to reveal a large storage area and a compartment with its own lid to one end. The box is finished all around and so can be sat in the middle of the room. You will not find another like this elsewhere, it is a one off made item for the merchant in the day. 126cms wide 62cms deep 44cms high
