Description

This is an antique, English, oak chest of drawers dating to the Early 18th century. Raised on bracket feet in traditional oak with good grain detail, the chest features a two plank top, field panel sides and the original back. The drawers are configured in the classic 'two over three' graduated arrangement separated by modest 'D' mouldings. The front panels thick set with double edge mouldings and dressed with later pierced, solid brass 'batwing' plated pulls. A good example of it's type, three hundred years old but with a place in the modern home, delivered waxed and polished ready for everyday use.
