Description

This large handsome desk / armchair dating to the late 19th century circa 1880 - 1900 is of very good proportions. The back having a solid walnut shaped frame enclosing a removable padded leather inset squab with shaped shepherd's crook arms. The seat squab being covered in a fine quality hand dyed tan leather hyde surrounded by a moulded frame which is supported by well carved cabriole legs with the front having a carved shell to the knee terminating on pad feet. The colour and quality of this chair is superb, with fine timbers used making this a good heavy chair which is always a sign of quality and age. This antique chair has been fully restored using traditional methods and ready for home use. A very handsome and importantly comfortable chair which will work in any period setting.
