Description

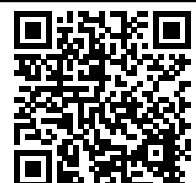

We are pleased to offer for sale this large oil on canvas by the artist FRANCIS E. JAMIESON, who has signed the painting in the lower right hand corner. - The painting depicts a view of the Old Mill at Brora, Sutherland. The river Brora is situated in the Northern Highlands of Scotland and is renowned for both for its fishing and its beauty, being a favourite spot for artists for many years. - There are two stretches of the river, the upper and the lower, with Loch Brora in between and the river reaches the sea, just north of Inverness. The painting depicts a scene of the upper reaches of the river flowing swiftly past an old watermill, fed by one of the burns that feed the Brora, with a mountain backdrop. - This is a lovely painting, executed in subtle muted tones. We know the location, as it was a favourite on the artist and is often entitled on the back of the stretcher. - ABOUT THE ARTIST Francis Jamieson was a painter in oil and watercolour of highland landscapes and coastal scenes. (The work of this highly prolific artist is curious since the oils and watercolours have two quite distinctive styles and subject matter. The oil paintings most frequently seen ar...
