Description

A very desirable pair of early 19th Century blue and white plates bearing the Rogers impress mark on both plates. The plates date from the early 19th Century and have the sought after elephant pattern set in an oriental garden with pagodas and trees. The picture is framed with stringing which separates it from the border of flowers and dark leaves, this is repeated on the outer rim. The condition of both plates is very good. A perfect display item or addition to a blue and white collection. c.1820 Diameter; 9.75" (25cm)
