Description

This set of dining chairs date from circa 1800. They come from the Yorkshire dales and have possibly spent most of their life on a farm. Good wide seat for a portly frame. They have a nicely shaped top rail with a string inlay. The legs have a stretcher base for added support. A rather classic Georgian look, simple elegant lines, good colour and good condition. The seats have just been reupholstered and are thus excellent, the set are ready to go. They sit very well with the Mahogany table they are photographed with but there are of course many other to choose from. We usually have around 50 in stock at any one time. Seat are a normal 18ins high.
