Description

The weavers of Kamo produced some of the most exciting bread sofreh into the first half of the 20th century, such as this one with its minimalistic design and exciting natural colours. What was the weaver thinking about when she made this flat-weave for kneading dough on to make bread? Could it be the sun setting or even rising? These weavers were inspired by the landscape, the colours of the sun reflecting on the mountains and around them at all times. I will leave it to your imagination! Size: 1m (3' 3") square.
