Description

A superb early Victorian solid silver cream jug. Beautifully shaped and standing on a circular foot, with a lovely looped, leaf capped handle and exquisitely engraved with 'c' scrolls and leaves with an empty cartouch within the very centre. Inside the jug, a nice pale lemon coloured gilt is visible, adding to the very attractive overall appearance. The very finest quality of this jug is apparent, associated with a reputed silversmith: Charles Thomas and George Fox, whose marks are very clearly visible on the base of the jug, along with hallmarks for the London Assay Office and a date mark for 1852 and Lion Passant indicating sterling silver. Condition: This cream jug is in superb antique condition. Hallmarks and maker's marks: London 1852 by Charles Thomas & George Fox. Measurements: Height 12 cm approx. Width at widest part: 9.5 cm approx. Depth: 7.6 cm approx. Weight: 144.57 grams approx.
