Description

A most unusual and highly decorative magnifying glass made from silver plate and probably continental (perhaps French) in origin. The heavy metallic handle is modelled in the form of a racing horse's head and then decorated with stylised foliage on a naturalistic background; this design is continued around the frame of the glass on both sides. The glass is convex with a wonderful clean and undamaged surface and a strong magnification creating an extremely usable and useful desk-top accessory. Lovely quality and condition measuring 9" x 4". Dating to around 1900. Item ID:39676 FREE Worldwide Registered Airmail Directly From London, England
