Description

A charming elm pedestal table raised on a baluster and ring turned column terminating with elegant tripod legs and tapering feet. As often happens with elm, the one piece top of this country table has taken on unusual contours, giving it an unusual and quirky look. The table top is edged with elm banding and has a superb grain and patina. There have been historic repairs to the base and evidence of old woodworm. (these can be clearly seen in the photographs) This has been treated again for peace of mind. This is an antique piece of character and these issues are to be expected in a table that is nearly 200 years old. A very decorative and useful table that would work well in any room as a wine or lamp table. c.1820 Diameter: 18" (46cm) Height: 28" (71cm)
