Description

Hermanus van Brussel Dutch, (1763-1815) The Farmyard Oil on canvas Image size: 18¼ inches x 21¼ inches Size including frame: 24½ inches x 27½ inches Provenance: Frost & Reed An appealing landscape painting by Hermanus van Brussel of a figures and animals at a farm. A farmworker is shown making his way along a path towards a farm building carrying a shovel and a pot. To the left, a figure stacks hay on to a cart from a hayloft as another stands with a horse outside a farmhouse. A woman and child can also be seen by the door of the farm. Van Brussel was a Dutch landscape painter who was born in Haarlem on 8 October 1793. He studied under Johan Bernard Brandhoff (1738-1803) and Christiaan Henning (1741-1822). He initially earned his living as a wallpaper painter and theatre decorator, painting the Amsterdam Theatre and the theatre at the Loo Palace for King Louis Napoleon. He travelled around painting the landscapes of Haarlam as well as visiting other towns and cities nearby to paint views there. He married Anna Maria Jacoba Gaussen in 1796, with whom he had 7 children. Around 1810, the family moved to Utrecht where he continued to paint until his untimely death on 2...
