Description

Antique Late Georgian (1825) Pearlware Flowered Jug This is a very beautiful late Georgian English porcelain Flowered Jug, decorated with sprays of boldly painted English garden flowers plus gilding. Under the spout the Jug is dated 1825. This must have been a Christening or Birthday present as it has also a superbly decorated pair of initials "BS", or "BJ", or possibly "BL" – how thrilled this person must have been to receive such a unique and thoughtful present. As it has been dated and initialed in this manner we believe that this Jug is probably unique: there will be no other copies – it was intended for the sole lucky recipient. Condition: Very clean and crisp order, with surprisingly minor wear from use, including a small hair line at the base below the spout, commensurate with being almost 200 years old. No restoration at all. This delightful Flowered Jug would make an ideal Christmas or Birthday present to any lady of the house who likes flowers, gardening and flower arranging. This lovely antique jug was produced in the late Georgian era in 1825, just 10 years after Napoleon was defeated at Waterloo, and exiled to St Helena. It is unmarked but wa...
