Description

An antique 19th century mahogany twin pillar extending dining table with 1 leaf which can seat up to 8 people. The top in a wonderfully figured mellow solid mahogany with reeded edges. The two D-ends standing on turned columns with 3 splayed and reeded legs terminating in brass cap castors. It has brass catches to fasten the table extensions together underneath the top. It can be used without the leaf to seat 6 people or with the leaf to seat 8 people, depending on requirements. The d ends have bird cage actions underneath to allow for the tops to be tilted up for storage. In good order with a polished finish, and very good quality. Construction/Wood: Solid mahogany Condition Report: Good colour and patina to the mahogany with a high gloss finish. The legs are solid and sturdy with no breaks or repairs. No woodworm. Very solid and stable. A few scuffs and marks commensurate with age. Dimensions: Total Width with Leaf: 201cm Width without leaf: 150cm Depth: 106cm Height: 72cm
