An early 18th Century wrought iron rush nip on a well grained and patinated base. This early Georgian rush light holder has an attractive turned stem and facility to take a candle. The metal is solidly fixed into the distressed antique base and though this has had regular use over the years, the condition of the base adds to the story and rustic charm of this country piece. c.1720 Height: 10.5" (27cm) Width: 3" (7.5cm)
