Description

An exceptional large antique very rare highly carved bracket style wall clock. The clock has an absolutely amazing colour and patina to it and superb large proportions by James Langelaan of Godalming. The case has a superb drop dial bracket clock design with it looking like a bracket clock sitting on top of its wall bracket. The carved oak case has a good figured patina and colour to it which is acquired through age which looks absolutely stunning with the high quality carved designs decorating the whole of the case which gives it an awesome display look. The case is in great condition for age and looks absolutely stunning wherever it is displayed with no sign of woodworm past or present. To the centre of the clock case it is engraved with the makers date of circa 1874. The case has a superb circular carved surround with brass bezel hinged door protecting the painted dial with original victorian glass, there is a hinged door to both sides of the case which hinges open for easy access to the pendulum. The clock benefits from its original painted 13.5 inch diameter circular dial with original hands. The dial is signed by the maker James Langelaan of Godalming. The clock has...
