Description

This is a late Georgian antique bureau in English oak. A writing desk dating to c.1800. Warm country feel and a desirable aged patina in the wax polished finish. Profusely decorated with blind fret geometric decoration. Standing upon Georgian bracket feet. Four full width, graduating oak lined drawers. Dressed with brass swan neck handles and pierced batwing back-plates. Matching pierced brass batwing lock escutcheons, locks present, keys absent. The fall opens and rests upon a pair of stout lopers. Offering a generous desk space at a comfortable height. To the rear a central cupboard with document slides either side. Flanked by triple cubby holes and a suite of drawers dressed with brass pulls. A charming example of period, English country furniture. Solid joints and construction, delivered waxed, polished and ready for the home.
