Description

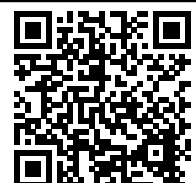

Dating from around the early Victorian period this pair of ormolu fire dogs are extremely heavy and have beautiful details throughout. They are brighter and more 'golden' than appears in the images and they stand at 57cm in height at the front, the width across the feet is 31cm and they are 24cm in depth. The central column is torchere in shape with a 'flame' top and a pair of rams heads at either side. There is no signs of damage or repair on either fire dog. We haven't cleaned them because many of our customers prefer us to leave items as they are. They weigh approximately 5.6kgs each, and we will offer a discount if the buyer can arrange collection from us in Surrey, otherwise please contact us for a quote for delivery.
