Description

C19th oil painting on canvas by St. John Mulholland , "Venice " , in carved and pierced giltwood frame. Well-composed and observed painting depicting the Venetian lagoon , looking towards the Basilica of Maria Della Salute and with St. Mark's Square ,the Campanile and the Doge's Palace together with the 'Bridge of Sighs', in the hinterland. Well-defined skyline showing the various landmark views of "La Serenissima " , a scene familiar to those approaching the city from the sea into The Grand Canal . The foreground showing life on the Grand Canal with merchant and fishing vessels together with gondolas and traghetti traversing the scene . Good attention to detail throughout, with multiple figures and architectural study. In excellent condition, benefitting from having been professionally cleaned approximately 10 years ago . Good bright colours and stable surface with no paint losses or deterioration. The reverse of the canvas showing two minor repaired punctures , invisible on the front of the canvas. Signed in bottom right-hand side by the artist . St. John Mulholland (1839-1910) was a British visual artist , being known and recognised for his views of Venice . A...
