Description

A decorative antique red damask covered triptych dressing mirror in 17th century style, the central swing mirror plate with bevel edges and with a shell and scroll moulded cresting, flanked by a pair of shaped folding bevel edge mirrors, raised on short cabriole feet. This is a substantial and heavy mirror, dating from circa 1900, it measures 89cm high. The central mirror section measures 52cm wide (including the frame) and the two folding mirrors either side measure 26cm each wide (including the frame). Condition: The mirror plates are original, with wide bevel edges and of good colour, unfortunately the mirror of the left hand folding plate is repaired at the top - see photographs.
