Description

This is an antique lowboy, an English, late Victorian, mahogany table dating to c.1900. Attractive deep russet hues to the wax polished mahogany. Displaying good, consistent colour and grain interest throughout. The top features flamed graining, finished with a moulded edge detail. Over a suite of three, cock-beaded drawers. Dressed with drop handles over solid brass batwing back-plates. A sinuous, serpentine apron to the front with arched detail to the sides. Raised on a full complement of cabriole legs. Terminating in well executed claw and ball feet. A good example with smooth running drawers. Solid joints and construction, delivered waxed, polished and ready for the home.
