Description

Fine mid C18th George II period mahogany architect's or draughtsman's table of metamorphic design. Wonderfully original example of a mid Georgian period reading, writing or drawing table in excellent untouched condition. The twin-plank mahogany top hinged with an adjustable easel ratchet support, released by the original brass 'button' catch. The front frieze fitted with a hinged drop-down oak-lined flap /drawer for storage of documents papers or drawings. Fitted with side lopers which extend to support the fitted retractable slide which retains it's original green felt or baize lining. The top fitted with holes or apertures in which to fit it's original removable moulded-section book-rest. Raised on square section legs with inside chamfered edges, each fitted with original barrel-type brass castors. The legs united by a shaped lower tier or shelf of symmetrical format with concave sides. This lower platform has a minor historic shrinkage crack. All original brass-ware, the working brass lock a possible later period replacement, supplied with its original 'loop' handle steel key. Fitted with original brass pulls and escutcheon plate of simple design. ...
