Description

This is an antique side table in mahogany, an English writing desk dating to the late Georgian period circa 1800. An attractive piece in choice cuts of fine mahogany. Appealing grain detail and of good consistent colour. Benefiting from fine flaring to the upper surface and drawer fronts. Displaying good proportion with a desirable aged patina. Three-quarter nib galleried top. Over a suite of three frieze drawers with hand cut dovetailed joints. Dressed with later loop handles over pressed brass backplates. Brass keyhole lining and locks, key absent. Raised on gently tapering square section legs. Curved spandrels softening the union from frieze to leg. A minimal rear overhang to the top for close-wall placement. A good example with solid joints and construction, delivered waxed, polished and ready for the home.
