Description

A good quality set of Georgian mahogany drawers dating from the early 19th Century. They are a typical design set on bracket feet with graduating drawers with large brass plate handles with matching escutheons. They are very well made and in good original condition with a lovely warm patina. The drawers run well and it is a sturdy set, with a solid back. There are the usual minor signs of wear and use and some light scratches and surface marks on the top but nothing detrimental. The mahogany has faded slightly on the sides over the years but it still displays beautifully. Overall a good honest set of drawers. The best description comes from the photos so please look at them all carefully and if you have any questions please ask. Free local delivery within 10 miles of Ashburton.
