Description

This Edwardian Inlaid Chest of drawers is lovely quality. It was restored by us maybe 20 to 25 years ago for a client. It has since passed down in the clients family and has come back to us so it can find a new home. It has had considerable light fade since being restored so now has a most appealing mellow colour to the wood. The inlays are all in place and the finish is still much better than most we see. It has certainly not been abused in any way. It has its original Edwardian handles and sits on splay bracket feet. It is a very well made chest and as one of the pictures show is clean inside too. It is a great size at 36 inches across a little smaller than most but still with excellent storage.
