Description

A very good quality figured walnut pedestal desk having a tan gilt tooled inset leather writing surface circa 1880. This extremely well-constructed pedestal desk has been made in the Queen Anne – George I style. Being an earlier model than the normal 1930's desk the attention to detail is superb having the drawer construction as an early 18th Century drawer would have been. Fully oak lined with front to back drawer linings which are not recessing into the sides they run the whole width of the drawer. End grain moulding is also prominent along with quality engraved brass back plates and swan neck handles. The rectangular top having a newly fitted tan and gilt tooled leather writing surface enclosed by a crossbanded boarder and crossgrain moulded edge sits over one long and two shorter oak lined frieze drawers. Each with crossbanded edges and engraved brass swan neck handles. Both smaller drawers have escutcheon plated handles, below which are twin pedestals each containing three drawers. The pedestals are walnut veneered and also crossbanded to each side and the rear, again showing attention to detail. The desk is finished and polished to all sides making it able to sta...
