Description

A Chinese bronze Censer and cover of a plain design standing on three feet which flow from the body. Above is a lid with bat form piercings and a central finial in the form of a mythical beast which is hollow with an opening at the mouth, when in use, for the scented smoke to fill the air with nice aromas. This restrained piece has very fine engraved decoration all over depicting dragons and beasts with a temple, water and clouds. To each side there is a lifting slot to insert a handle when hot.
