Description

Very unusual, high quality Regency period Scottish mahogany occasional table with original inlaid various hard stone section to the top. The table stands on a shaped platform base with lovely gilded brass bun feet with integral castors and nice shape turned central column. The top part of the table has a single drawer which is mahogany lined with period but not original gilded brass lion handles. The top of this table has a very unusual 24 piece inlaid hard stone section to the middle with brass line inlay surrounding it. The whole piece is inlaid with ebony stringing on all parts. The table is free standing as it is finished exactly the same on the back. There is a small old repair to the front part of the top but it has been there a very long time as nearly all the marks and scratches go across it. No other repairs that I can see. The table top has originally had a brass gallery around three side as you can see the filled pin holes but I think it looks much better without it. The piece is a lovely colour with rich patination. SIZE; 25" wide by 20" deep by 27 1/2" high CIRCA; 1800 - 1820
