Description

MATHURIN MOREAU: a fine large and impressive mid-19th century BRONZE SCULPTURE of a young fisherwoman on her way home with the day's catch, which she carries in a basket under her left arm, with her rolled-up fishing net on her right shoulder. Beautifully modelled and cast; fully signed to the integral base. 27ins (68cms) high including the original marble base. The Moreau family sculptor dynasty started with Jean Baptiste, born in Dijon at the end of the 18th century. He had 3 sons: Mathurin was the second and perhaps the most famous. Mathurin won many awards and his work can be seen in many of the squares of the towns around Paris.
