Description

An unusual and somehow rather charming silver-plate bronze sculpture of an OSTRICH. Well modelled, finely cast and raised on its original ebonised socle base, it measures 9ins (23cms) high. The Ostrich is the largest bird in the world by height and a native of Africa. Sometimes confused with the emu (indigenous to Australia) the Ostrich has two toes; whereas the emu has three. This may (or may not!) account for the fact that the Ostrich can easily out-run the emu...
