Description

An extremely fine quality George III Sheraton period mahogany and satinwood inlaid linen press / mahogany clothes press of outstanding figuring and colour circa 1790. The cornice having a central oval inlaid tablet with a satinwood fan inlaid lunette shaped (half-moon) pediment whilst retaining the original three urn finials, one central larger mahogany turned urn finial being flanking by two smaller urn finials. Below which is with a moulded and arched tear drop "Gothic" design cornice inlaid and strung with satinwood to the top and bottom. The decoratively inlaid pair of doors having mahogany oval panels and satinwood banding whilst the finely figured mahogany veneer with a uniform stripe being quarter veneered and crossbanded. The doors open to reveal a fitted interior of four original oak sliding trays. The lower section being fitted with two short and two longer drawers being mahogany book-matched veneered, satinwood banded and crossbanded whilst retaining their original period hexagon brass plate handles and escutcheons with the whole being raised on splay bracket feet. This is an exceptionally good quality linen press of an excellent Sheraton design. This linen pr...
