Description

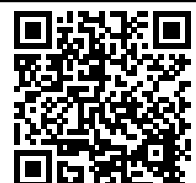

For sale is a fine example of an early 19th Century Elizabethan Style Four Poster Bed. Having a deep carved floral pattern around the entire canopy, supported by turned columns featuring bulbous cup and cover, gadrooned, stiff leaf carved supports, over classical guilloche carving, which can be seen throughout this piece. The foot board has four diamond carved panels. The head board is also complete with a further eight carved diamond panels, over a further four linen fold panels. The underside of the canopy is also decorated with diamond panels with a crown motif to the centre. The bed is in very good condition and would grace any bedroom. The bed has some slight wear commensurate with age and use and some later alterations. PROVENANCE: This bed was purchased from Boringdon Hall, Plymouth, England. Boringdon hall dates back to the Domesday Book (1086AD) where the first mention of a permanent structure was recorded. The name Boringdon originates from the Saxon Burth-Y-Don, meaning enchanted place on the hill. In 956AD King Edgar granted the Manor of Boringdon & Wembury to St Peter of Plympton, meaning it was the property of the priory until the dissolution of the monaste...
