Description

This is a set of six antique dining chairs in mahogany. English, late Georgian in the manner of Chippendale dating to the early 19th century, circa 1800. An attractive set of six, English, early 19th century dining chairs in the desirable form of five standards plus a larger 'father' chair. In good proportion, displaying Chippendale influence. Well executed design and of quality craftsmanship. In select mahogany with a desirable aged patina. Rising on square section legs with chamfered inner corners. Attractive serpentine crest rail extending to flared ears. Accentuated vase form splat, pierced and detailed. Traditionally stuffed drop-in seat pads. Finished in a classic brown leather in good order. Easily recovered to suit any décor. A handsome set of chairs, solidly jointed and robust throughout - ideal for regular use. Delivered waxed, polished and ready for the home.
