Description

Circa 1910-1920 a pair of white/opaline glass half globe ceiling lights with the original, beautifully shaped brass chains. We have priced them as a pair, although one has some damage to the glass around the edges at the top - see last photograph. The remaining part of that shade is in good condition with no sign of damage, and the other one is good throughout. The price reflects the faults in the second shade. The ceiling bowls themselves measure 25cm across the rim at the top; 32cm approximately in width at the widest part with a depth of approximately 25cm. The heavy and well made chain is 40cm in length and this could be shortened if required. We can supply two brass ceiling hooks to match. As we no longer sell through a retail outlet, these can be collected from us in SW London or please contact us to discuss delivery. If they are to go within easy reach of the south side of the M25/Surrey area, we can deliver.
