Description

HENRI CHAPU: a charming French bronze sculpture of Joan of Arc depicted unusually as a young (and beautiful) woman of the "people" rather than the traditional armour-plated warrior with sword in hand! She is attired in a simple short-sleeve dress with a scarf around her hair, as she sits resting on her haunches with her hands clasped in front. Signed by the artist and also: F. Barbedienne, Fondateur. (Later wooden stand, optional)  Henri Chapu was born in Le Mee-sur-Seine, in 1833 and trained as a tapestry maker. A four-year visit to Italy resulted in his winning the Prix de Rome in 1855 and great success followed as a sculptor. He died in 1891.
