Description

Early 19th century tea cup and saucer in the bute shape attributed to Miles Mason, c.1810. Decorated with a frieze of stylised flowers and foliage in black and white on an orange ground. Black border around the edge of the handle, below the floral frieze and a black painted acanthus leaf up the back of the handle, and the rims are gilded. Unmarked but matches a teapot that I believe is by Miles Mason. The pattern interestingly appears very similar in design to the Spode patterns 878/893. The cup measures 5.7cm (2 1/4") high, 8.2cm (3 3/16") rim to rim and 10.7cm (4 1/4") rim to handle. The saucer measures 13.5cm (5 1/4") wide and 3cm (1 3/16") high. Condition is very good with just a slight sliver chip to the inside of the foot of the saucer. No restoration and very light surface wear, there are a couple of craze lines in the glaze under the base of the saucer.
