Description

Dating from the early to mid Victorian period, this ormolu candle stick has superb details throughout and is in very good condition. It measures 48cm in height and 27cm across the widest part. It has a triangular shaped base of approximately 14cm each side, with lion's claw feet supporting the central column. Around the three sides are lion's faces each holding a ring in their mouths. At the top of the candlestick is a beautifully cut glass ball with a pineapple finial on the top and decorative leaves around the candle holders, each holding small, original glass drops. In the last photograph the fine workmanship can be seen clearly as around each section of the item there is a thin brass rope effect between each piece of brainwork. Postage and packing within the UK mainland only is included in the price but for outside areas or abroad, please contact us for a delivery quote.
