Description

Large Edwardian era painted plaster bust of a Renaissance lady by the French sculptor Leon Noel Delagrangé (1872 – 1910). Shoulder length bust of a young woman in 16th.c. dress and cap. Unusually posed with down cast eyes and a slight smile. Clearly signed Delagrangé on the rear. One quite large chip to the front and a few smaller knocks, all to the bottom edge. Otherwise excellent condition. Dimensions: width 22", depth 8", height 17". As well as being a prolific and successful sculptor Delagrangé was also a pioneer of early aviation. He established a new world aviation speed record of 45 miles an hour on 30th December 1909. Sadly he was killed in an air crash just a few days later.
