Henry J Neave, 1900 - 1971 Engineers dismantling the Roof of Cannon Street Station, London 1958-1959
Signed/Inscribed: "H.J. Neave . / 1959" watercolour and pastel 50 x 70 cm. (20 x 28 in.) H. J. Neave was an artist and illustrator, he worked for Penguin Books and created a number of illustrations for Royal Mail Stamps. A Set of Stamps for Bermuda. He created a number of paintings of the dismantling of the Roof of Canon Street station between 1958-1959 including this one. Cannon Street station, also known as London Cannon Street, is a central London railway terminus and connected London Underground station in Travelcard zone 1 located on Cannon Street in the City of London and managed by Network Rail. It is one of two London termini of the South Eastern main line, the other being Charing Cross, while the Underground station is on the Circle and District lines, between Monument and Mansion House. The station runs services by Southeastern, mostly catering for commuters in southeast London and Kent, with occasional services further into the latter. The station was built on a site of the medieval steelyard, the trading base in England of the Hanseatic League. It was built...
