Description

A fabulous pair of 19th Century oak bellows with a dramatically carved winged dragon attacking a snake. This generously sized pair of antique bellows have a brass nozzle finished with a studded leather trim. The back of the bellows is carved with an attractive all over leaf design. These bellows are in full working order. The condition is good, there is some wear to the leather around the nozzle, but this is not detrimental and is as can be expected on an item in use since the 19th Century. A very decorative and useful pair of Victorian fireside bellows. c.1890
Length: 22.5" (57cm) Width: 10.5" (27cm)
