Description

A wonderful late 18th Century side or serving table with a very interesting history. The substantial two plank top sits above two drawers, bull rings have been used to form the original handles. This antique table is an excellent example of Welsh country carpenters making use of the materials to hand. The table was removed from an old Welsh woolen mill and is in good, original condition. There is evidence of historic woodworm, long dead, but treated for peace of mind. A super side or serving table to add rustic charm to the modern interior. c.1790
