Description

Attractive antique Victorian carved walnut sideboard in the manner of Lamb's of Manchester. A lovely Victorian carved walnut sideboard. We date this sideboard to the late 19th century. The sideboard comes in two sections: the base and the mirrored gallery back. The parts are screwed together for stability. The sideboard sits on turned legs at the front and square section legs to the rear. The sideboard has wonderful carving throughout and has lots of areas for display. The lower cupboard door has a painted daffodil panel and the top cupboard doors have carved panels depicting what appears to be greek goddesses. There is an amount of gilding to many of the edges and the rear panels have been covered in a foliate designed material. There are two small drawers to the base of the top section, these and various other panels of the sideboard have been veneered with a good quality burr walnut. The gallery back has an amount of shelves and features well turned pillars. The mirror glasses are thick, bevelled and showing only minor signs of foxing. The sideboard has a height of 97.5" (248cm) (including gallery back) with a base cabinet height of 37.5" (95cm), a width of 71...
