Description

An unusual and quite large cast BRONZE DISH by this famous French sculptor. Of the Art Nouveau period, it depicts a naked young woman reclining in a field whilst holding flowers in her left hand. The two handles show distinct influences of the Art Nouveau movement and it is signed by the artist, lower right. 16.5ins wide.  Henri Fugere (1872-1944) was a statuary artist, born in St. Mande, a city to the North of Paris. He studied in Paris with Barrias and Cavalier amongst others, and became influential in the Art Deco period for chryselephantine figures (usually a bronze body with ivory head; hands and feet) forever made famous by Chiparus and Ferdinand Preiss.
