Description

Oil on canvas showing fishing boats on a harbour. The painting is signed by the artist Jef Dutilleux (1876-1960) and is mounted in a carved wooden frame of the period. Dutilleux was a Belgian painter who was mainly active in the first half of the 20th century and painted in an impressionist/post-impressionist style. During the German occupation of Belgium in the First World War, Dutilleux sought refuge in the Westhoek. After the war, he documented the destruction before returning to his home in Uccle. Two of his works from this period, Ecluse de Chasse - crique de Nieuwendamme and Yser, are part of the collections of the Royal Museums of Fine Arts of Belgium. Yser, commissioned in 1919 and were acquired by the museums in 1920. He is listed in the Benezit Dictionnaire des Peintres, Sculpteurs, Dessinateurs, et Graveurs. Dimensions including frame - 70 x 55 cms
