Description

Circa 1800 Irish George II Chippendale style carved mahogany hall table. The rectangular mahogany top with a fluted moulding (originally would have had a marble top) is over an impressive carved frieze on both sides and front. It contains a central, open carved fruit basket, surrounded by carved oak leaves, acorns, rosettes. With Irish classical shell carvings to sides and acanthus leaf carvings extending down the cabriole legs that terminate in a classical carved Irish claw foot, surmounted by unusual upturned acanthus leaves.
