Description

This is an antique bureau bookcase, an English, Georgian, mahogany cabinet dating to the late 18th century, circa 1800. Classic glazed display cabinet over a practical writing bureau. Generous in size offering storage and display or bookshelf space. Attractive mahogany showing fine aged tone, well figured with good colour. Locks present throughout with a key to upper cabinet only. Upper display/bookcase cabinet provides four adjustable shelves – 2 x half depth. Behind classic 13 pane, locking, astragal glazed doors. Fall flap opens on to sliding lopers to reveal a well fitted interior. A generous desk space backed by a suite of eight cubby holes. Central cupboard with a secret document drawer either side. Flanked either side by four cubby holes over three drawers with brass pulls. Chest beneath features a full width frieze drawer. Recessed lower cupboard behind a pair of plain doors. Flanked by two banks of three graduated drawers. Main drawers dressed with loop handles over pressed brass back-plates. Smooth sliding and benefiting from cock beading offering ample storage. Raised upon traditional bracket feet to all corners. A simply lovely and functional item of traditional antiques.
