Description

An attractive good quality set of mahogany drawers dating from the late 18th / early 19th Century. They are a typical design set on bracket feet with two short over three long drawers. Each drawer has a pierced brass plate handle and matching escutcheon. The handles are not original but they have been on the drawers for a very long time and are well fitted. They are very well made and in good original condition with a lovely warm patina. The drawers are lined with old paper which has torn and stained in places but generally the drawers are clean and tidy and open well. There are the usual minor signs of wear and use and some marks on the top surface and some small chips on the corners but nothing detrimental. The mahogany has faded somewhat over the years, leaving the drawer fronts and top lighter than the sides but it still displays beautifully. The best description comes from the photos so please look at them all carefully and if you have any questions please ask. Free local delivery within 10 miles of Ashburton.
