Description

This is a rare find, a wonderfully styled Art Deco 1930's clock lamp, an example we've not had before. There's no makers name or mark so we only know that it's European and likely to be French in origin. On a marble effect background is a chrome nude female holding two ropes, above her the clock dial with stylised numerals. The dial is suspended between two tubular chrome supports which double as lamps. The base of the clock is a circular plinth of highly polished onyx. The overall condition is very good for it's 90 odd years but the chrome does show signs of use and age with mild pitting and discolouration on some of the edges and hard to get to areas, nothing to distract though, this clock still packs a punch looks wise. The height is impressive and the whole clock itself exudes class and originality. This rare gem has been serviced by our horologist so comes to you in full working order and keeping good time. Excellent size too, would look awesome as a mantel or centre table clock.
