Description

Good example of a brass framed hall lantern, dating from the early to mid 20th century. It has small round brass feet and also a chain for hanging. It is a simple hexagonal design with plain panels of glass and subtle detail around the top of the brass frame and curving brass arms joining to make the finial. It has a single suspended bulb holder which has been re-wired and takes a standard bayonet bulb but we always recommend fitting by a competent electrician. The lantern is in good original condition with no major damages. The brass has tarnished slightly in places and developed a nice aged patina and it displays very nicely. It has been lightly cleaned and polished and is ready for use. The best description comes from the photos so please have a good look and if you have any questions at all please ask. Nationwide delivery £30.
